Q: Using an arraylist for images in Java I am currently reading in images with a text file and placing them into an arraylist. I then read a random image and i want to use that as the images in a randomisation program. So i looped through the array list to select an image and then display it, but it does not seem to display the image. The image displayed is the last image read in from the file.

How do i loop through an array list and use the images that are inside? System.out.println("We will play a game with " + lst.size() + " shapes."); int rand = (int) (Math.random() * lst.size()); System.out.println(lst.get(rand)); int num = (int) (Math.random() * 4); System.out.println(num); int image = (int) (82157476af
